

The FCC should work harder to protect the public and the common man. It is very discouraging to see how little regard you apparently have for the individual, and how great your obeisance is to corporations and big money and power. It is also disheartening to see how poor your grasp is of the importance of preserving a diverse range of media ownership and control. It is as if you are clueless about what strengthens America, and what weakens her. Clueless.